“What’s Bugging You” Viticulture Program Fall Workshop – Saturday, October 17th, 2015

This is one workshop that is not to be missed!

Where? Southern Heights Presbyterian Church, corner of Old Cheney Road and South 40th Street, Lincoln, Nebraska

When? Saturday, October 17th, 2015

Cost? $20 per participant – pay at the door, includes lunch

This is the first Fall Workshop to focus on vineyard insect problems, and it couldn’t be more timely. With the emergence of several new insect problems and the intensified pressure from some old ones, the University of Nebraska Viticulture Program in cooperation with the Nebraska Winery and Grape Growers Association (NWGGA) is pleased to bring you expert presentations on pertinent and emerging insect problems and their management. Following is a tentative agenda for the workshop:

8:15 – 9:00 – Registration ($20 per person includes lunch and hand-outs)

9:00 – 9:15 – Introduction to the workshop – Paul Read, University of Nebraska Viticulture Program

9:15 – 10:15 – Grape Insect Up-Date – Professor Frederick P. Baxendale, University of Nebraska-Lincoln, Department of Entomology

10:15 – 11:00 – Pollinator Decline: Implications for Grape Growers – Dr. Johnathan Larson, Extension Entomologist, University of Nebraska-Lincoln

11:00 – Noon – Multi-colored Asian Lady Beetle: When is it a Problem? – Paul Read, UNVP

Noon – 12:45 – Lunch (provided to all registrants)

12:45 – 1:30 – Phylloxera: History in Europe and Beyond – Dr. John E. Foster, Professor Emeritus, University of Nebraska-Lincoln, Department of Entomology

1:30- 2:15 – Bronze Marmorated Stink Bug, an Emerging Problem in Eastern States, Soon to be here? – Steve Gamet, University of Nebraska Viticulture Program

2:15 – 3:30 – Round Table Discussion - Apple Twig Borer, Spotted Winged Drosophila, and Other Challenges: Where do we go from here? - University of Nebraska-Lincoln Staff and Workshop Participants.

Conclude and visit local wineries on your way home (maps available or check your NWGGA Passport). Safe Travels!

This is one workshop that is not to be missed!
